

'BigFoot; The Mysterious Wanderer'

The visualisation of the picture above is something of a regular occurrence in interactions with people and nature. When something has diminished in use, they litter without a care. The 'BigFoot' in the picture could have been easily disposed of in a bin but the very human nature loiterers and litterers actively dictates against that. They do not care for the environment, as such they will litter as that is easiest for them. Just as they do not care for others around them, they also care not for the environment.
